

Conservation Leaders for Tomorrow

Hunting Awareness & Conservation Education

Hunting

Goal: To convey the physical, mental, and emotional stimulations and challenges of hunting, including harvest success and failure.

Objectives: After this block of instruction the participant will be able to:

1. Hunt under a controlled and mentored circumstance
2. Experience shooting at game birds
3. Explain why hunting may be a passion for most hunters

Note: It is not a goal of the CLFT program to make hunters out of the participants, but rather to provide the opportunity to understand and experience the many values associated with hunting.

Why This Is Important for a Natural Resource Professional

Hunters are important constituents for wildlife professional and the conservation community. Understanding the various motivations and values involved in hunting will make professionals more credible with hunters and will allow for the development of more effective conservation programs. By experiencing an actual hunt professionals will enhance their understanding of hunting by taking conceptual information and turning it into practical information.
